

RECTAL EUS PREPERATION

GENERAL INFORMATION

EUS is an outpatient procedure that uses a thin, flexible, lighted tube with a small ultrasound probe attached to the end (echoendoscope). Rectal Endoscopic Ultrasound is a safe procedure but rare complications can occur including bleeding, perforation of internal organs, or reactions to the sedation medicine.

You will be lying on your left side or back during the procedure. You shouldn't feel any pain, but mild cramping or bloating can occur. As the scope is withdrawn, the inside lining of the colon is carefully inspected. Depending on your symptoms and what is seen, biopsies may be taken.

After the procedure, you may feel abdominal pressure or bloating because of air that was introduced during the procedure. This will disappear relatively quickly with the passage of gas. You should be able to eat a regular diet.

COMPLICATIONS ARE UNUSUAL, BUT CAN OCCUR:

- Minor or major bleeding, possibly requiring hospitalization, blood transfusions, repeat endoscopy, or surgery.
- Abnormally low blood pressure or heart rate related to abdominal pain.
- Perforation of internal organs, requiring hospitalization and emergency surgery.
